ZOMBIES INVADE LEICESTER, THIS HALLOWEEN

DEADRISING IS THE PROUD SPONSOR OF DAY OF THE UNDEAD

DAY OF THE UNDEAD THE UKS PREMIERE ZOMBIE EVENT

Saturday, October 27th, 2007 is the day that the Phoenix Arts Centre, Leicester, gets over-run by the Living Dead. Around 10 hours of feature films, celebrities, shorts, amateur film makers, horror make-up, zombie give-aways, a best dressed zombie competition and a very late bar will be available for those who go larger than life in the grave lane. A ripping feast of classic and new movies plus a FAB Press outlet, a chance to be made up as a zombie by Stuart Conran (make-up guru responsible for Shaun of the Dead, Brain Dead, and Hellraiser;) Jamie Russell, author of the Book of the Dead and artists from Leicester's own Darkwaters Entertainment.

The feature films are:

Day of the Dead Dir: George A Romero, USA 1985
2.30pm. This is the less widely seen instalment of the "Living Dead" trilogy, focusing on a group of apocalypse survivors in a missile silo. Savini's make-up effects are a grotesque career high point in this, the darkest of Romero's zombie classics.

Dead Meat. Dir: Conor McMahon. Ireland 2004,
4.45pm. A shocker that mixes mad cow disease with flesh hungry zombies and more decapitations and shovel bashings than you can shake a shamrock at.
The eyeball-sucking vacuum cleaner is a must!

A Japanese zombie gets dealt with, in the Ultra Violent, Asian, Zombie Classic, 'Versus.' 6.30pm.

Versus Dir: Ryuhei Kitamura. Japan 2000. Subtitled.
6.30pm. A serious cult classic by any measure - and simply awesome on the big screen - Versus mixes J-horror culture with non-stop gore fest flashiness that spares no-one when a group of escaped convicts and yakuza gangsters fight an army of zombies in an endless forest.
Kinetic, overloaded, and bloody, bloody, bloody...

Home-grown Zombies meet the few survivors in the UKs own... 'Zombie Diaries.' 9pm.

The Zombie Diaries Dirs: M.Bartlett & K.Gates. UK 2006
9pm. Hot off the presses, this terrific British bone-cruncher tracks a news crew heading out of London to check story about infected animals then are quickly engulfed by a zombie infestation in the Home Counties. Other groups have to fight for their lives as the sickening become routine and existence as we know it dies screaming.

Braindead Dir: Peter Jackson. New Zealand 1992
10.45pm (ish.) The endless nightmare that is Braindead suitably winds-up our event as Peter (Lord of the Rings) Jackson goes bananas with zombies and fashions a picture of lasting amazement filled to the brim with gore and lawnmowers...

DAY PASSES available from the Box Office, visit or call 0116 255 4854 from noon, daily. Single tickets are online at <http://www.phoenix.org.uk/>
All Day Full Gore 'See Everything' Pass: Only £16
Individual sick flicks: £5.20 (£4.30conc)

FREE ZOMBIE DVDS AND STUFF MUST BE WON THROUGHOUT THE DAY OF THE UNDEAD
LUCKY BAGS for first 250 people... Come dressed to impress !!! THE BEST DRESSED ZOMBIE will win a prize...

ZOMBIE FEST 2007 THE AFTERMATH

The dust has settled and the blood is dry, but this August a new legend was born, a shelf stacker and secretary of the Gary Glitter Fan Club became the second character to survive a Zombie Fest...

But we will get onto that in just a moment...

Friday, August 17th, in a secret location somewhere near Milton Keynes the zombie fans arrived, some in disguises, some under blankets, but the two things that linked all of them was firstly, they all made sure they weren't followed and secondly, they all loved zombies... Friday night was general chilling out, some zombie films on a big screen cinema set up and some late night drinking and catching up around the camp fire... Then to bed in preparation for Saturdays madness... First came the shooting and archery, with an hour of each for the zombie-philes to get their 'eyes in' in a zombie target shooting session, then came Stuart Conran, main make up man from Shaun of the Dead, doing a demonstration and generally getting messy creating make up for the gathered throng...

Then the main event...

This year the setting was Willard Valley, the year was 1977 and the reason for the get together was a traditional village fete, tea, cakes, jam tasting and games of skill, then it all went wrong... Missiles, evil scientists, zombie nuns and plenty of bunting... Blood, gore, brains, eyes hanging out on nerves and a bren gun helped things reach a climax with over 50 zombies hunting down the living and finally, an army execution squad ended the lives of all but one...

He survived physically, but what about mentally???

To find out more or simply get your head around what happened and just what the hell we are talking about, check out:

OI! YOU'RE BARD

It's on the other side of the pond, but if you are in New York and need a Zombie fix in October or November, then check this play out, an undead take on England's greatest playwright... More details can be found at:

<http://www.impetuous theater.org/home.html>

The artwork, the name and the idea means this site is well worth checking out. Not sure we will get to see it though.

ZOMBIE MAKE UP PROBLEMS?

It's almost that time of year, when thoughts turn to ripping up that old suit, slapping on some make up and covering yourself in golden syrup and dye....

Don't forget that if you need help making up zombies for Halloween then we have on our downloads page two full Zombie Make Up Guides for you to treasure keep and use, find them at:

http://terror4fun.com/zombie_downloads.html

MEET THE MAN !!!

Jamie Russell, author of the 'Book of the Dead,' and FAB Press will be at Day of the Undead. Get your book signed and check out their other books, T-Shirts and DVDs on the day.

FRIGHTFEST ZOMBIE WALK

IS EUROPEAN RECORD

On the Monday of FrightFest (27th August, 2007), The Zombie Diaries Zombiewalk was almost the largest gathering of zombies the world had ever seen... The Americans held the record at a whopping 894 at the Monroeville Mall and all of us were determined to bring the record to this side of the pond... We tried... Loads of the UK's most dedicated zombie support groups were there, not only Mike Hewitt and the Eatmybrains.com crowd but people from Fleshmob.co.uk, Darkwaters Entertainment and Terror4fun.com along with hundreds of others to make this a day to remember. After the invasion of local businesses, toilets and buses was done, the zombie conga and the brains games had ended and with only some spots of fake blood congealing on one of London's most famous areas.... The count was in... 689... Not a World Record, but certainly a European record and showing the true spirit of his country, the resounding question is ringing in everyone's ears... Same time next year ??? Let's hope so... details are at:

WIN A COPY OF THE ZOMBIE DIARIES

The Best British Zombie Film in years has just become available on DVD for the first time and you can win a copy here. All you have to do is answer this question...

Who survived Zombie Fest 2007 ???

The answer can be found on the Terror4fun website...
Send your answers to mailinglist@terror4fun.com before October 14th, 2007

Filmed and set in the UK, this home-grown horror is the scariest zombie film that Terror4fun has seen. Revolver Entertainment who have released the film are sponsoring a showing of the movie at Day of the Undead, which includes a DVD giveaway at the start of the showing, so see this on the big screen while you can !

Have a look at their films at.

WE NEED YOUR ZOMBIE FILMS

Terror4fun's Day of the Undead 2007 is a new Zombie festival being held in Leicester on October 27th, yes you guessed it, 2007. We are currently hunting out any zombie film shorts that you have made or seen or are in the process of making, as we want them for our Festival. Check out the front page for details of the event.

If you are making a zombie film, anywhere across the world then get in touch and we will put you in this newsletter and on our website, as we have already helped a number of indie films get extras and make up artists and generally get off the ground.

If you have a completed zombie 'short' then let us know, get in touch and we would love to get hold of a copy to potentially show at Day of the Undead. Email us at the address at the bottom of the page. It could get shown on the big screen !

Whatever the quality, we would love to see your films, but please send it to us before October 14th, 2007

A LEGEND

WILL MAKE YOU A ZOMBIE

Stuart Conran, make up artist from Shaun of the Dead, Brain Dead, Hellraiser and Saving Private Ryan to name a few, will be at the Day of the Undead film festival, making people into zombies... You can be made up by this legend in Horror Film Make Up and Effects...

Come along, meet the man, chat with him and be the envy of your friends as he makes you into one of the Living Dead...

This is a once in a lifetime chance, don't miss out... REMEMBER it's October 27th, Leicester...
